Brothers Meet on Korean Front

The Christmas season for Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith, 7261 Central, will be much happier in knowing that their sons, Donald and Richard have finally met in Korea and are seeing each other occasionally.

The boys were home last July for a visit before being shipped out. Richard the older, was to leave soon as a helicopter pilot, for duty in Korea.

Donald was then training at Camp Pendelton as a machine gun section chief and in September was sent to a battlefront 20 miles north of Inje, where he remained for several weeks.

Donald knew the number of his brother's helicopter and naturally was continually watching for that number.

Richard was so busy transporting the wounded from front lines to hospitals in the rear that he had had no time to look for Don.

One day in November Richard flew his colonel to the front to meet Gen. Ridgway. He was flying close to the ground and looking down, saw a Marine frantically waving his arms.

Sure enough, it was Don who had at last found that number.

They soon got together and as they are stationed on opposite sides of the same hill, see each other often.

COURT OF HONOR

This is to be a gala affair with many of the members and their ladies planning to attend the dinner preceding and the entertainment following the installation. Mason Bowen of the San Diego Club is General Chairman.

High School Seeks Tax Limit Increase

The Board of Trustees of Grossmont Union High School District has adopted a resolution calling for a special election on January 29 to increase the present 75 cent tax limit to $1.35. The increase if approved by the voters, will be valid for a period of five years.

This action had been preceded by long board study of finance problems which developed because of inflation and growth. The decreased purchasing power of the dollar coupled with increasing pupil population in Helix and Grossmont High Schools will cause a serious curtailment of the educational program if the proposal is not approved by a majority of voters, stated Lewis F. Smith, District Superintendent.

A Citizens Advisory Committee, formed from over 70 community organizations, had recommended and approved the tax increase prior to board action.

The board also approved the football safety codes which have been in operation at Grossmont

Teachers Club to Aid Blood Drive

The members of the Lemon Grove District Teachers Association, working with the PTA groups at the three schools, is assisting the Women's Business League of Lemon Grove in recruiting pledges for the Blood Bank. The bloodmobile will visit this community on Saturday, January 26.

When classes convene after the Christmas holidays, teachers will send home with each child a pledge card which may be signed and returned to school. These pledge cards will then be filed, awaiting the arrival of the bloodmobile to Lemon Grove, at which time donors will be notified.

The San Diego County Teachers Association has planned a campaign to secure blood for the wounded in the Armed Forces on a county-wide basis. During the next two months every school will investigate, or cooperate in, a drive to sign donors for this worthy cause. A five-member committee has been working during the past month on preparations for the county drive. Margaret Darroch and Robert Sutton of the Lemon Grove faculty are committee members from this district, with Gordon Shields, Grossmont teacher, as chairman.

Lemon Grove stores open every night till Christmas.

L. G. Navy Pilot Making It Hot for Korean Reds

A Navy jet pilot from Lemon Grove is helping to plaster Communists fortifications, supply routes, and factories in North Korea.

As part of the Bon Homme Richard task force and jet squadron 781, Lt. Arthur Guy, of 7805 Nichols St., has been making regular runs into North Korea to disrupt the Red flow of supply to the battle front.

According to a recent Naval communique from the Koreaan front, Lt. Guy is credited with severely damaging a factory with rocket fire on one of his latest missions.

Among other things, the Navy pilots have been specializing in blasting railroad tracks. In a recent strike, as Red repair crews were patching up previous rail breaks, carrier-based planes cut enemy tracks in 63 other places.

They also destroyed a roundhouse, destroyed or damaged 49 buildings and 14 rail cars, and damaged two rail bridges and two tunnels.

Mrs. Guy has received word that her husband arrives home the first of the week for a 30 day leave.

Lt. Guy had been in Korea since May and his future orders call for a jet base in Texas.

Lt. and Mrs. Guy and sons, Kenny and Tommy will rent their home here and move to Texas in January.

Seeking Best Macadamia Nut

The California Avocado Society through its Subtropical Variety Committee has sponsored a contest to determine the best Macadamia Nut grown in California. The Macadamia Nut (or Queensland Nut) is native to Australia but is grown commercially in Hawaii; its outstanding flavor makes it universally popular; its quality and short supply make it quite expensive. There are several hundred of these trees growing in Southern California, largely as ornamentals.

The California Avocado Society desires to stimulate interest of growers in the Macadamia Nut and offers prizes totalling $50.00 for the five finest nut samples submitted. Requests for application forms shall be mailed to Elwood Trask, Pres., California Avocado Society, 4833 Everett Ave., Los Angeles, or to Wells W. Miller, Rt. 2, Box 1197, Vista.

The samples submitted will be judged by a sub-committee of the Variety Committee and the winners announced at the next annual meeting of the California Avocado Society, June 7, 1952.

Double Sessions to End at Vista La Mesa School

Following the holidays when school reopens at Vista La Mesa on January 2, all regular grades will be on all-day session. This has been made possible by the completion of the school additions which include five classrooms and an all-purpose room. The latter will be used as the school cafeteria in the near future when inspections are completed and equipment installed.

The following schedules for classes have been released by Ben Schei, principal. Grades one, two, and three will attend classes from 8:45 a. m. to 2:15 p. m., with a 12:00 to 1:00 lunch period. Grades four and five will attend from 8:45 a. m. to 3:15 p. m. with a similar lunch hour. Kindergarten classes will be in school the maximum 180 minutes permitted by State law. Morning classes will be held from 8:45 to 11:45 a. m. and afternoon sessions for the kindergarten will be from 12:30 to 3:30.

Since most students will be arriving and leaving school during regular hours when traffic is at a minimum on the highways, they will no longer require bus service. The School Safety Patrol will be organized to control crosswalks and all children will be instructed concerning preferred routes and pedestrian safety.

There will be no change in the teaching staff at the school.

R. E. Sutton is Principal of New School

Robert E. Sutton was named principal of the new San Miguel School in the Lemon Grove School District at the December meeting of the Board of Trustees Monday evening. It is planned that the new elementary school will open on or about the first of February after the beginning of the second semester.

Students for the new school will be transferred, with their teachers, from the Golden Ave. School. These teachers signified their preference for the San Miguel School early last fall and were assigned those pupils who lived in the vicinity of the new site. The complete class lists of those boys and girls who will make the move early next year are now being prepared and the names will be available as soon as the lists are completed.

The school will include kindergarten classes through the fifth grade. All sixth, seventh, and eighth graders in the district are enrolled at the Intermediate School on Lincoln.

In the second, third, fourth, and fifth grades, students will be enrolled for all-day sessions. The same grades at Golden Avenue School will also enjoy a full day of instruction. Since Vista La Mesa will have been on a full-day session since January, this will leave only the Monterey Heights children on double session, and those students will also be on a regular schedule fol-

FROM THE NEWS CIRCUIT

by JAMES DORAIS

The widely publicized ruling of Superior Judge Arthur C. Shepard of Fresno declaring the 160-acre limitation clause of United States reclamation law unconstitutional in the case of most land within the Central Valley Water Project is vindication for those Californians—particularly former Senator Downey—who long have held that limitation is unworkable and harmful in California.

The hotly debated issue had its beginning in 1902, when a provision of the Federal Reclamation Act of that year limited delivery of water on a Federal reclamation project to the amount needed for irrigation of 160 acres, or 320 acres, if owned by a husband and wife, in community property States such as California.

The intent of the provision was the fair division of the public domain among Reclamation settlers, and the justice of the law hardly can be questioned in those cases where farms actually have been created by the Federal government with public funds out of arid, unproductive lands. The lands in California's Central Valley, however, do not fall in that category, and refusal of the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation to recognize that evident fact is the root of the bad feeling that has existed so long over the issue.

At the time the Bureau of Reclamation commenced construction of the Central Valley Water Project, there was no public land in the entire valley. The area had been irrigated and developed by private enterprise for nearly 100 years. It is underlaid by an underground water supply to which all landowners have access.

Senator Downey, in his book, 'They Would Rule the Valley," against enforcement of acreage limitation in the Central Valley as follows:

1. CVP cannot be operated except by replenishing the ground waters of the area.

2. It is impossible to replenish ground waters for 'small' farmers without replenishing it for 'big' farmers as well.

3. Thus, enforcement of acreage limitation in the Central Valley wouldn't deprive the excess owner of an adequate water supply—it would merely deprive him of measurable Project water which he would not need. Therefore, because the Project will be paid for by the water users, the 'big' farmers would get a free ride at the expense of the 'small' farmers.

The plaintiffs in the suit before Judge Shepard's court were excess landowners in the Madera Irrigation District. They asked that their land in excess of 320 acres be removed from the District and relieved from the payment of assessments, inasmuch as the Bureau of Reclamation's contract with the District forbids the delivery of water to the excess acres. Had the Judge ruled in their favor, the decision would have clearly illustrated Senator Downey's argument. Instead, Judge Shepard denied the suit, holding the Bureau's contract with the District invalid, and that the owners are entitled to water for their so-called excess acres.

The case will be appealed, and eventually, a Supreme Court decision will settle the controversy.

Political Parade

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

California's dynamic Congressman John Phillips, under the provocative heading, "A Billion Dollars is Ten Dollars," has translated the fantastic cost of Federal Government in the United States to terms applicable to each individual in the State.

Speaking before the California Taxpayers Association a short time back, Congressman Phillips pointed out that every time the Federal Government appropriates one billion dollars, it means $10 to every individual in California—$35 or more to every family.

Philips then detailed the point in terms of present Federal expenditures:

"If Congress passes an appropriation bill for defense purposes of about $56 billion, that means $560 for each one of you, or about $2,000 for the average family. . . I remind you that the bill contains no costs of the Korean war—they are in another bill. For them you will probably contribute $100 each this year."

The Congressman continued: "On the last day of the recent Congressional session, you spent $73 each for military and economic aid to 58 different countries. Most of them are in better financial shape than this Nation, on a per capita debt basis, and have a recovery index figure of about 142 percent, compared with the prewar index. None of them approaches the percentage figure, from its own national income, which you are generously spending from your tax income, to build up their defenses.

"You. . . in one session . . . in an average California family, gave $2,000 to the military and about $350 for the Korean war. You also gave the President $250 to spend on aid to foreign Nations and about $50 to Mike DiSalle, Eric Johnson, and Charlie Wilson.

This does not include debt service, on which you will spend over $200 this year, nor does it include the regular and liberal operating costs of the greatest government in the world, which will run about $1,000 a family.

"In other words, as families, we are putting up about $3,750 this year."

Congressman Phillips then pointed out that "every State in the United States has a credit balance in its treasury. The Federal Government is $257,000,000,000 in debt."

According to news items, the national debt next year is expected to push—if not pass—the present legal limit of $275,000,000,000; and Congress will be asked to boost it to around $300,000,000,000.

Congressman Phillips suggests two remedies: 1—The States should stop going to Washington for Federal aid and pay their own way, as every State is in better financial condition than the Federal Government; and 2—Elect Congressmen who will bring a halt to the spending orgy.

Words of Wisdom

Lana Turner—"The Hollywood press has always been good to me. They have always crucified me with a smile.

Lieut.-Gov. Goodwin Knight—"The true liberal supports the ideal expressed by Thomas Jefferson—that country is governed best which is governed least."

Don McNeill, radio and TV star, in L. A.—"Women are eager to do their husbands' bidding—at the bridge table."

Dr. Douglas Whitaker, Stanford Univ. science prof.—"Our great future potential for unlimited energy is the sun. Given enough energy, chemists can make practically anything from sea water and air."

Film Director Michael Curtiz—"To play at love a man should be hungry—the light in the eye is the same. Only a good cook can tell the difference."

Mrs. Constantine Ramsey, Oakville, former Finnish baroness now naturalized citizen—"American friendliness is wonderful. People in other countries have been unhappy so long they have forgotten how to be friendly."

Shelley Winters, L. A. actress—"I'm the modern, independent, intelligent type of woman. That's a girl who can't get a man."

"Wood rot" and "dry rot" are caused by a tiny fungus that feeds on the wood cells and fibers, eventually destroying the wood. Lumber pressure treated with copper-arsenate salts protects against both fungus and termite attack.

SOUP INTO SALAD: You can make a marvelous chicken salad of the gelatin type, with condensed cream of chicken soup as the base. This has a rich chicken flavor, without added meat. And it's so easy to turn the soup into salad—just by adding dissolved gelatin and chopped vegetables. It looks lovely. And you'll like the way it tastes.

Summer Chicken-Loaf Salad

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup lemon juice
1 can (10½ ounce) condensed cream of chicken soup
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons sliced stuffed olives

Soften gelatin in lemon juice. Heat ½ can soup carefully over low heat; add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add the dissolved gelatin to remaining soup and chill until slightly thickened. Then stir in the remaining ingredients. Prepare molds (6 individual or a 1-quart, perhaps a loaf pan) by rinsing with cold water; pour in salad mixture. Chill until firm; unmold and serve on crisp greens. Decorate top with slices of stuffed olive. Makes 6 servings.

SOME HOT, SOME COLD: A bowl of good hot soup looks so appealing when the rest of the meal is made up of cold foods. Sure enough, you want the chilled salads and refreshing desserts on summer days. But these foods taste even better when there's one hot dish to go with them.

Brighten a warm day with a menu like this: Big bowls of soup (tomato, chicken noodle, or cream of mushroom); egg salad sandwich with pickle chips; watermelon or cantaloupe; chocolate cookies.

LADY, BE SEATED: Save your precious energy by sitting down to do kitchen tasks, whenever possible. A low table on casters is handy for this. Sit there to trim vegetables or fruit, prepare salad ingredients, and to make sandwiches, etc.

"SMALL BUSINESS"

by C. WILSON HARDER

Whiskey comes into its own in America. In setting price ceilings on liquor, the Office of Price Stabilization has now established whiskey as a necessity of life.

OPS concentration on whiskey has caused Washington cynics to comment "Without whiskey many of these nonsensical orders could have never been written so naturally it's a necessity in Washington".

C. W. Harder

OPS went into whiskey deeply, too, for printed orders, publicity, etc., are among most elaborate set up on any commodity.

Just one of the whiskey price orders took 14 pages of newsprint, and many supplemental orders were also issued.

And all this concentration on possible high whiskey prices came at a time when whiskey stocks are the highest ever.

This surplus of whiskey was amply illustrated by another OPS order on bulk whiskey which set the ceiling price on four year old, 100 proof bourbon at $3.96 per gallon. And the OPS also split hairs, or rather gallons, to determine that corn whiskey the same age is only worth $3.38 per gallon.

But when it comes to wasting tax dollars on foolishness, the young OPS is a mere bush leaguer compared to the older Marshall Plan. Commerce Dept. just reports U. S. imports from Marshall Plan nations have doubled to reach over billion dollar mark since Korea. The imports are principally iron and steel products and textiles.

But at the same time the Marshall Plan announces that over $1 million worth of iron, steel and pig iron, and almost $1 million worth of textiles has been given to Yugoslavia.

And at the same time the Defense Production Administration issues a bulletin stating that lead and copper are in critically short supply.

But DPA apparently forgot to tell Marshall Plan officials about this, for shortly after it is announced $5,369,000 worth of lead and copper has been given to France.

This has led to a new definition of free trade in Washington.

"We buy from them the things which we give them free".

And as already mentioned, OPS spends days working out price control on whiskey based on 1947 prices, yet the newsprint price of vital concern to the last stronghold of the American independent free press, the weekly newspaper, has skyrocketed. Shortage of newsprint is the excuse given.

But ECA Bulletin No. 37 reports the Marshall Plan has bought $270,000 worth of newsprint in Canada to give Yugoslavia. And as is well known, any Yugoslavian editor who uses this newsprint to print the truth would have to have a hole in his head. Or rather, if he did print the truth, Tito would see that he would have a hole in his head.

These are but a few of the many reasons why Congressmen are not having a happy holiday.

Folks back home are taking the viewpoint that individual Congressmen have not protected the American home. That is why new Congressional session may be stormy. Many Congressmen will return with feeling they are on probation.

Stresses Young People in Politics

Speaking before a group of State College students Thursday, William K. Shearer, State Assembly candidate, discussed the important part which young people can play in politics if they are dedicated to principle and know the facts.

"One of the key problems facing our republic today," Shearer stated, "is that we have too many people who are politically illiterate. They cannot tell you who their Assemblyman or State Senator is. Many of them do not know who represents them in the national Congress; most people know even less about the voting records of their representatives on important legislative matters.

"On the State level," Shearer continued, "the Assembly and Senate Journals do not give adequate information for full study of important bills. In order to get copies of the bills introduced and considered in the State legislature a fee of $75 per session is charged. Most interested people just cannot afford this expense."

Shearer said that he favors a State legislative journal on the order of a "Congressional Record" to be provided to interested people at no more cost than 2 or 3 dollars per month. This revised journal should include copies of all bills and amendments considered by the legislature, debate on those bills, and perhaps an appendix containing additional remarks and articles of importance.

"The State legislature is somewhat eclipsed by Congress in terms of press coverage," Shearer concluded. "A record of proceedings such as I have suggested would give the people of California more complete information about matters that vitally concern them. The cost of this publication to the State would be far outweighed by the public service it would render."

Defense Bonds Excellent Gifts

Those Southlanders planning U. S. Defense Bonds as Christmas gifts—"the present with a future" — may procure attractive four-color holiday gift jackets without charge at all Southern California banks, it was announced yesterday by J. B. Messick, State Director for the Treasury Department's U. S. Savings Bonds Division.

The free bond jacket shows the Wise Men on their way to visit the Holy Child. It bears a holly decorated gift tag across one corner, with the legend "For Peace and Security," and provides space for the name of the recipient and the donor.

"Thousands of Southland Christmas trees will bear U. S. Defense Bonds in the colorful gift jackets among their branches," Messick said. "To those with the 'I don't know what to give' problem, U. S. Defense Bonds are the answer. Bond gifts are especially popular as they contribute to the security as well as the happiness of the recipients."

Southern California business organizations, Messick reported, will give many millions of dollars in Bonds as Christmas bonuses to employees and as gifts to their workers now on leave to the Armed Forces.

and Helix High Schools during the past season. Reports presented by Coaches Bud Nygren and Ken Maynard showed that injuries had been held to a minimum by the codes in effect.

Asst. Supt. Harold G. Hughes reported that 8 buildings for Helix High School were ready for bids. The board set January 8 as the date for opening of bids on this construction which will complete Helix High. Cost of buildings and ground improvement is now estimated at $1,500,000. Four major classroom units under construction by O. L. Carpenter Company are nearing completion. The 8 additional buildings included in the bid are 2 shower and locker units, 2 industrial arts units, a music unit, a speech arts classroom, a cafeteria and an administration unit.

Completion date, set for September 1952, will permit Grossmont and Helix High Schools to operate on a full time basis, each on their own campus.

Mrs. Martin

home on Inglewood drive, Mrs. Martin's health improved so much that she was able to live quite a normal life and entered devoutly into the work of St. John of the Cross Church and took part in community service.

Mrs. Martin served in various offices in the Altar Society and Parents Guild and belonged to the Legion of Mary.

She was especially gifted in public relations and publicity and for the last two years headed that phase of work for the annual barbeque and rodeo sponsored by St. John of the Cross each year. Had her body been as strong as her determination and devotion to the cause, she would not have broken under the strain of many duties.

Her devotion to the good of the Parish School and her love of little children amounted to a passion. This service did not deprive her home and family of loving care. The spiritual training of her children was never neglected and because of the cooperation, devotion and ideal companionship of her talented husband, the Martins were leaders in church life.

Mrs. Martin's friends were not only in her church. Her friendship and loyalty to the Review family leaves a sense of a loss so deep that only time can heal.

Besides her faithful husband, she leaves two sons, Jimmy 10, Billy 9, and a daughter, Margaret Ann, 8; her mother, Mrs. Mary Ann Martin, a brother Elvin Martin and a sister, Mrs. Kezia Young, all of Glen Bain, Sask., Canada; a brother, Dalton Martin, of Moosejaw, Can.; two sisters, Mrs. Myrtle Raskos and Mrs. Eleita Kortge, of San Diego, and her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Waters of St. Paul, Minn.

Mrs. Martin's mother and aunt will be here for the memorial services.

ARE FEED PRICES TOO HIGH?

Submitted by Mason Feed and Supply

Below are listed the USDA official cost-per-ton prices at Los Angeles on October 10, 1951 as compared with October 1950 prices:

	October 1950	October 10 1951	Increase per 100 lbs.
Barley No. 2, bulk	$54.50	$ 70.50	$ 0.80
Corn No. 2 yellow, bulk	64.82	77.00	0.61
Milo, No. 2, yellow, bulk	51.16	62.00	0.54
Wheat No. 1, bulk	70.56	80.00	0.47
Alfalfa, No. 1, baled	28.65	41.75	0.65
Standard mill run	48.85	71.00	1.05
Molasses beet pulp	44.82	65.00	1.00
Cottonseed meal	72.05	76.00	0.20
Copra meal	57.30	80.00	1.10
Linseed meal	65.70	72.00	0.81
Soybean meal	82.76	108.99	1.21
Fish meal	115.70	150.00	1.71
Meat scrap	37.50	58.00	1.02
Alfalfa meal	89.00	104.00	0.75

What About Egg, Meat and Food Prices?

The following figures were taken from the Wall Street Journal on October 10, 1951:

	October 9 1950	October 9 1951
Butter, New York, pound	$.6425	$.705
Eggs No. 2, Chicago, dozen	.51	.68
Broilers, 3 lb. DelMarVa, pd.	.24	.26
Hogs, top, Chicago, cwt.	20.60	21.10
Steers, choice, Chicago	30.75	38.00

From the above figures you can see that the producer of meat and eggs is in a better position today than he was a year ago. With 33 lbs. of broiler meat in a bag of Broiler Chow today, a 2c increase in broiler meat means an extra value of 66c in a bag of Broiler Chow.

With 200 eggs in a bag of laying mashes, a 17c increase in egg price means an extra value of $3.40 in a bag of laying mashes.

Local Egg Situation

	Profit over feed per dozen October 1950	October 1951
Eggs, dozen, wholesale	$0.53	$0.63
Feed cost per dozen	0.25	0.28

Production cost per dozen eggs based on five pounds (or less) of Laying Chows to produce one dozen eggs. This shows that, although Chow prices have advanced, there is approximately an extra value of $1.40 this year in the bag of Laying Chows as compared with last year.

FARM NEWS
AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

Save Young Eyes

Young eyes will suffer during dark winter days and evenings unless a suitable study location is provided in the home. Home Advisor Bena Johnson of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service, says the days of studying on the dining room or kitchen table should be past.

A flat-top desk or table will give more work surface than a drop-leaf desk. The best surface size is about 24 by 46 inches, with a standard height of 30 inches. The surface finish should be non-glossy, with mahogany and other dark woods covered by a pastel blotter.

The desk should be placed flat against the wall and away from family activities. The wall should not be glossy or have a "busy" wallpaper. If the wall is patterned, a celotex tackboard about 36 inches by 42 inches hung on the wall behind the desk will be more restful on the eyes.

Adjustable posture chairs are too expensive for most homes, so Miss Johnson suggests fitting cushions to the chair seat to raise a small student to the proper height. The eyes must be at least 14 inches above the desk top for normal reading distance. Books should be propped or tilted slightly toward the eyes for easier reading.

A pair of lamps, either wall or table type, will give more light than a single unit, unless the single unit has a fluorescent tube, or tubes, which can be placed ahead of the student so that the tube is located over the center of the reading material.

Farm Production Expenses on the Increase

Farm production expenses may be expected to continue to increase in 1952, making efficient management even more important than usual. So indicates a report of the Agricultural Outlook Conference by Farm Advisor E. C. Moore of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service.

Production costs are expected to be about 5 percent higher. Meanwhile, farm prices, in general, probably will range about the same as this year.

Briefly, here are some points in the economic outlook. slaughter of cattle and calves is expected to increase about 10 per cent. Hog production after increasing for five years is about at its peak and may decline a little in 1952.

Next year should see an increase in lamb slaughter after nine years of decline.

Chicken and turkey meat will be in large supply the next few months although high consumer purchasing power is expected to take marketings at about current prices. Egg production in the first half of 1952 is expected to be about three or four percent higher and egg prices a few cents a dozen lower.

Milk is expected to continue at the same production level as the past four years. This means that the per capita supply will be lower because of increasing population. Feed grains are in slightly smaller supply while protein concentrates will be in ample supply.

Fruit should bring good prices in 1952. Vegetables are expected to be in larger supply in 1952. Full production of cotton probably will be sought for another year.

HEALTH for all

Beware "Health Cures"

The traveling medicine man, selling bottles of elixir or panacea, is largely a thing of the past. Today, we are amazed that people of past generations were "taken in" with claims of cures by these charlatans.

As a result of public education and legislation, comparatively few people nowadays are victimized by peddlers of false "health cures."

But despite nationwide efforts to protect the public against harmful or useless drugs, contrivances, and cosmetics for which extravagant claims are made, a few quacks still are able to make a good living selling fake medicines and "medical devices."

The fact that people waste money on these fake cures is serious enough in itself. But the real danger of these fraudulent claims is that they tempt people to "doctor" themselves, frequently with tragic results.

Certain limited, small-scale forms of self-medication are harmless. Most of us keep iodine, bandages, headache remedies, and laxatives in the medicine cabinet for minor accidents and ailments. But even in matters of headache relievers and laxatives—which, incidently, can be habit-forming or dangerous—the advice of a doctor should be sought.

The doctor is the one qualified source of advice and treatment for disorders, especially in the event of symptoms or suspicions of serious illness.

For example, with so many people seeking "slim, youthful figures," scores of companies have "reducing remedies" on the market today. Again, whether overweight is due to gland or gluttony, a person can reduce safely only under the advice and supervision of a doctor.

Incredible as it sounds, some swindlers try to get away with selling fake drugs or devices to "cure" serious illnesses like cancer, arthritis, tuberculosis, and kidney disease.

Even if the "quick cures" are worthless rather than dangerous in themselves, much harm is done when the sick person substitutes purchase of the useless product for a visit to the doctor.

But the federal and local laws made to protect the people against such frauds are constantly being strengthened. Moreover, post office employees and reputable advertisers and business men are always on the alert to crush this modern version of the old-time "medicine man."

The consumer himself can help in this crusade by refusing to patronize medical frauds and reporting them without delay to the proper authorities.

Any wood, when pressure treated with Chemonite preservative, is ideal for any use in the yard or garden. The salts deposited in the wood cells protect the wood against decay and insect attack for 20 years and longer.

Marine Poster Tells Story of Korean War

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."—St. John 15:13

Across the nation this year, the Marine Corps is displaying a Christmas poster whis epitomizes the ultimate devotion to duty and self-sacrifice.

It shows a Marine who is alive today because a fellow Marine deliberately sacrificed his life. Pictured is Corporal Bert M. Johnson, of Grand Prairie, Texas, who as a machine gun section leader was felled during the street fighting in Seoul, Korea.

Amid a hail of enemy fire, Pfc. Eugene Obregon, 19, of Los Angeles, rushed to Johnson from a place of safety. Obregon dragged Johnson to the side of the street and began bandaging his wound. As the enemy counter-attacked, he protected Johnson with his own body and fired into the enemy until they turned a machine gun on him. Obregon's heroic defense of his friend permitted the rescue of Johnson, and the recovery of Obregon's body by Marine reinforcements.

At the Pentagon in Washington last August, Mr. and Mrs. Peter R. Obregon received posthumously the Medal of Honor for their only son. After Corporal Johnson witnessed the presentation ceremony in the company of Mr. and Mrs. Obregon, he went to a church to pray.

While Johnson visited the Grace Reformed Church, Washington D. C., Master Sergeant Robert H. Westmoreland took the color photograph which appears on the Marines' Christmas poster.

Sunkist Growers' Marketing Costs in 1951 - exactly ZERO!

The Exchange marketing assessment this past year was 13¢ per packed box on all varieties of fruit.

This in itself was the lowest marketing assessment of any West Coast citrus marketing organization. But actually, marketing this past year has cost the Exchange grower nothing.

All this year Exchange packing houses have been able to secure box shook from the Fruit Growers Supply Company, Exchange affiliate, at a 10¢ per box saving.

This 10¢ saving was not available to any shippers outside the Exchange. It was made possible only by the fact that, through the Supply Company, Exchange growers own their own timber and operate their own lumber mills.

Furthermore, Fruit Growers Supply Company has just paid to Exchange packing houses an advance partial refund of 3¢ per box on shook for the current year. Thus, the Sunkist growers' total saving on boxes this year amounts to 13¢—the precise amount of the Exchange marketing assessment.

In other words marketing their fruit in 1951 has cost Sunkist growers exactly zero.

"But isn't it true," you ask, "that Exchange growers pay an assessment for advertising, too?"

Yes, every Sunkist grower helps pay for the aggressive advertising and merchandising of the Sunkist brand, and shares in the benefits of the tremendous nationwide consumer preference for Sunkist fruit.

But Sunkist fruit this past year, as in previous years, has commanded a premium in the market—a premium so large as to repay the advertising assessment many times over.

This efficiency and aggressiveness, extending through all phases of Exchange activity, is the reason why Sunkist packing houses far surpassed other houses in returns last year, and will beat them again in 1951!

Talk to your Sunkist neighbors. Talk to your local Sunkist packing house manager. Get all the facts! See if you, too, wouldn't do better as a Sunkist grower, next season and in years to come.

NOTE TO SUNKIST GROWERS:

No one knows better than you what can be gained by affiliation with Sunkist. Tell your neighbors about it. It's good business for you, helpful and profitable advice for them.

Lemon Grove Students Enjoy Week at Camp.

Thirty-three students from the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades of the Intermediate School are spending this week at the Palomar Mountain School Camp, under the direction of the San Diego City-County Camp Commission. The group left Monday morning, with William Lemke, faculty advisor, by private bus for the Upper Doane Valley in Palomar State Camp and will return on Friday afternoon. The site is located approximately 65 miles from San Diego and 10 miles from the world-famous Palomar Observatory.

Cost to the individual student is $14, which includes camping fees, insurance, and transportation. All boys and girls from this district who are enjoying this splendid opportunity to learn more about many of the sciences and the conservation of our natural resources were thoroughly checked by the school nurse and obtained parental consent before making the trip.

The campers are all represented by a camp council which plans their week's program. These include trail, fun, work, inspirational and creative activities.

Christmas concert

Tickets are on sale at the school in Room 12 from 2:45 to 3:30 p. m. each day or may be obtained from any of the student salesmen.

It's Wonderful the Way Chewing-Gum Laxative Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE —NOT GOOD FOOD

● Here's the secret millions of folks have discovered about FEEN-A-MINT, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here is why FEEN-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different!

Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon—right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out.

But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that typical weak, tired, worn-out feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel your "peppy," energetic self! Get FEEN-A-MINT! No increase in price—still 25c, 50c or only 10c.

Tampa: Wholesale Murder

It was well known that Tampa was an important sub-capital of the Mafia-backed narcotics ring, with national links in the gambling and murder-for-hire traffic. Law enforcement was so corrupted that even the Cuban gamblers who ran the profitable bolita racket, referred contemptuously to the sheriff as Cabeza de Melon—"Melon Head."

Human life was almost as cheap as the sands of the beach: in 19 years, there have been 14 murders and six attempted assassinations in the Tampa underworld—and only one conviction.

The explosive element that keeps Tampa in a ferment of violence, the Senate Crime Committee found, is the long-standing rivalry between two equally hot-blooded gang factions. One is the Mafia-backed clique or criminals of Sicilian or Italian extraction, the other the numerically larger Cuban faction. Mixed in, of course, is a leavening of native racketeers.

The two principal roles in the Tampa story were played by Salvatore (Red) Italiano, Italian-born ex-convict and reputed strong man of Tampa's underworld, and Clifford Hugh Culbreath, the official called "Melon Head." Italiano was among the missing when Sen. Lester Hunt, who conducted our hearings there, went to Tampa. But from "Melon Head," the committee counsel drew a fantastic story of how he had managed to make deposits of at least $128,000 in half a dozen banks scattered throughout Florida and Georgia during his nine years as sheriff.

One purely local racketeer interrogated was Charles M. Wall, a nonchalant, almost whimsical, 71-year-old gambler who once was "brains of the underworld." He was the victim of at least three attempts by presumably "unknown" parties to assassinate him. Almost humorously, the old man assured us:

"I wasn't much interested in who it was that was doing it. I was interested in keeping from getting killed."

As Red Italiano could not be found, we summoned Vincent Spoto to answer a few questions. Spoto is president of Anthony Distributors, a wholesale beer and wine corporation owned by the Italiano family. Spoto earned $100 a week, not, he explained, for his duties as president, but for work he did in the shipping department. Italiano drew $300 a week as general manager. He was only one of many criminals found throughout the country who had managed, contrary to state and federal regulations, to infiltrate the liquor business.

From other witnesses, we heard that Italiano was a big-shot in Bolita, the Cuban lottery played with 100 numbered balls. Oscar J. Perez, formerly chauffeur to a murdered bolita racketeer named Jimmy Velasco, told us Italiano and Velasco had quarreled violently. Perez also testified that Italiano's chauffeur and bodyguard—Joe Provenzano, who was tried and acquitted for Velasco's murder—used to carry shotguns in the front seat of his car when he drove on Tampa's main streets.

Noah W. Caton, a marine engine mechanic, told of a strange alleged tieup between Sheriff Culbreath and Red Italiano, involving ownership of a fish business.

From Mrs. Anthony DiLorenzo, estranged wife of a special deputy for Sheriff Culbreath, the committee heard that in 1947 Red Italiano obtained a deputy's commission for her husband, "to do special duties." Thereafter, she testified, both Red Italiano and Sheriff Culbreath regularly telephoned DiLorenzo to give him instructions as to his "special duties." DiLorenzo also collected his $200-a-month "salary" from Italiano, Mrs. DiLorenzo testified.

Q. What was your impression of what he was doing as a result of these telephone calls? What were his duties?

MRS. DiLORENZO: Well, he was checking different places with them, different bolita places.

Q. Was he collecting from them or was he arresting them? A. He was just more of a go-between between the underworld and the law, as a messenger between those.

But the first witness to accuse Culbreath of having received money from the gambling interests, was Paul Giglia, a former bolita peddler for the late Jimmy Velasco. During Culbreath's reelection campaign in 1948, Giglia testified, Velasco told him "to take some money down to the sheriff."

He swore that Velasco regularly sent money to the "old man"—meaning Sheriff Culbreath. The euphemism for these payments—sometimes $1,000 at a time—was "rent," and Giglia said that "the money was going out faster than it was coming in."

It was Anthony Deschamps, Velasco's cousin, who used to check receipts for the murdered gambler, who first told us how the Cuban bolita peddlers called Culbreath "Cabeza de Melon." Velasco showed him his "pay-off" list, on which there were notations of alleged weekly payments of $500 to "Cabeza de Melon"; the same amount to "R," and $250 to "E.D." Deschamps charged that "Melon Head" was Sheriff Culbreath; "R" was State's Attorney Rex Farrior, and "E.D." was former Chief of Police J. L. Eddings. (All three denied this).

Oscar Perez said he used to drive Velasco to the county jail, where Velasco and the sheriff would confer in a special inner sanctum called "the rat hole." Perez, he used to help Jimmy count out the weekly pay-off, and the amounts would vary from week to week.

Q. Why would it vary?

PEREZ: Well, as in every kind of business, I guess you had to balance your budget.

The 53-year-old sheriff told the Committee some interesting facts about his career and his activities. In 1932, he was elected constable. He operated a private fishing business during the period he was constable, but filed no income tax returns on his earnings. In 1938, a grand jury indicted "seven of the most prominent gamblers of the city and nine public officials without whose acquiescence or co-operation these flagrant violations of the law could not have continued."

One of them was Constable Culbreath, and the grand jury publicly requested the then governor of Florida to remove Culbreath, along with others, from office. Nothing, however, happened. In 1941, Culbreath became sheriff.

The sheriff insistently denied he ever had any dealings with Red Italiano, except to call on him occasionally in search of information that might help him to solve crimes.

At one point, Sheriff Culbreath tried to convince the Committee he really wasn't very bright. "I am not a smart boy . . . and never was," he said, assuring us he couldn't even remember the street address of a friend he visits three times a week. He also said he could qualify as a prime example, of "Exhibit A," of how a fellow in public life could be abused falsely by "harping critics, jealous and disgruntled politicians, discontents, malcontents, has-beens, would-bes" and what-not.

For a "not smart" boy, Exhibit A" had done rather well for himself. The Committee figured from the sheriff's income tax declaration that his net income for the years 1941 through 1949, after deductions and taxes, had been $16,014.98. He admitted to having cash, bonds and property holdings valued at $95,893.52. Counsel was able to establish that at least $128,000 had passed through five of Culbreath's bank accounts in the past nine years and that, currently, the sheriff had $45,700 divided between his various bank accounts, his safe deposit box and the home safe, also, $8,500 in government bonds.

Another bit of low—yet tragic—comedy was the disclosure by two witnesses, formerly connected with the sheriff's office, that Ernest (Rookie) Culbreath, the sheriff's brother and his chief criminal deputy, ran a gambling book right at the county jail.

Associate Counsel Rice produced a match book cover which read: "Briggs & Company—Rookie Culbreath and Leslie Cathcart. We do small things big. Everything in sports."

What did the sheriff have to say about that "Everything in Sports"? "Well, sir," Sheriff Culbreath said, "I think someone that put out matches did this to play a trick on them."

SUCKER DIVORCE

Sucker Cut-Off Causes Separation

BRAZIL, Ind.—A short sucker supply was grounds enough to get Geneva Mae, a 20-year-old blonde, divorced from her 72-year-old husband. She was granted her freedom because he cut off her supply of frozen suckers.

In awarding the divorce from Sam Pollum, a judge also included $400 alimony, which, the girl said, she won't use to buy more suckers. She intends to buy clothes with whatever amount is left after she buys a scrap book in which to put her clippings of the trial for future reference.

Geneva testified that her husband had ordered the family grocer not to charge any more frozen suckers to their account. They were married on May 8 and separated June 22.

Entire Family Helps With Preparations For the Holiday

Why not make this a real Christmas by having the entire family help in preparing for the great holiday? Follow the suggestions below and you may be amazed at the family solidarity shown around the Yuletide feast table.

First of all, getting the tree. This is an assignment that should fall to the younger members of the family. Going to the woods is the American tradition, and there is a special thrill in bringing in a tree of one's choice. City dwellers, however, have to buy their tree, so be sure to let the youngsters be able to say, "We chose the tree."

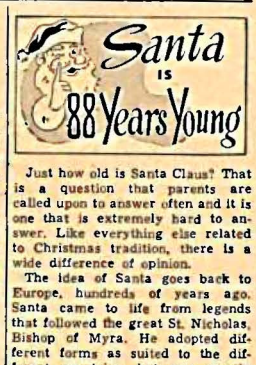
Decorating the home is a project that will offer jobs and fun for all. Arrange a nativity scene, decorate the doorways and windows, and, if there are any sick members of the family, decorate a small tree for the bedside. But, work together.

Then, have a party, complete with games, dancing, caroling, refreshments and the exchanging of presents. The exchange of gifts should be well planned, so that no member of the family is slighted. Drawing names from a hat is an old custom in many large families. Strive also to add some extra entertainment. If a member of the clan can sing well, or dance, a solo performance should be a highlight.

Finally, after the party is well under way, call everything to a halt and give each member of the family a pencil and piece of paper, asking them to write in 25 or less words, "What Christmas Means to Me." You may be surprised at the answers turned in by some. Faith and sincerity may be found where you least expect it.

Old toys, adorned with a fresh coating of paint might make a wonderful gift for the very young.

You can make an attractive apron gift that would be appreciated by a young housekeeper from a feed or flour sack.



Just how old is Santa Claus? That is a question that parents are called upon to answer often and it is one that is extremely hard to answer. Like everything else related to Christmas tradition, there is a wide difference of opinion.

The idea of Santa goes back to Europe, hundreds of years ago. Santa came to life from legends that followed the great St. Nicholas, Bishop of Myra. He adopted different forms as suited to the different countries, but was mostly pictured as a thin, austere man with a long white beard.

The age of Santa, as American children know him, can be almost definitely ascertained. The plump, smiling and jolly fellow is 88 years old this Christmas.

Thomas Nast, an American cartoonist, drew the now familiar form of Santa in 1863 to illustrate a book of Christmas poems by J. M. Gregory. For the first time in his unknown life span, Santa appeared to have a full stomach under his red suit and a jolly smile on his face. It might well be said that his American life began in that year.

Early Puritans Frowned On Christmas Festivities

The early Puritans looked with disfavor upon the celebration of Christmas, preferring instead their own adopted celebration of Thanksgiving.

It was thus that in the year 1659 the general court of Massachusetts made a decree that would have startling effect in America today. It read: "Anybody who is found observing, by abstinence from labor, feasting or any other way such day as Christmas Day for each and every offense shall be fined five shillings."

THE OLD AND THE NEW

Visitor Finds Two Worlds in Jerusalem

Palestinian merchants still create a scene reminiscent of the three wise men as they carry their wares along the desert sands bordering the blue Mediterranean near ancient Tel Aviv. Their camels, laden with wares, remind one of the gifts the Magi brought to the scene of the Nativity.

Today, the visitor finds two Jerusalems. One is the modern city with street cars, hotels and automobiles; the other the old walled city with narrow streets passing through many graceful archways and mounting from one level to another by well-worn steps. Donkeys and camels are the only means of transportation, and the section is little changed since the time Christ lived there. Life is much the same.

Top Producer

Since the turn of the century, when oil drillers discovered sulphur beneath the Gulf Coast in Texas and Louisiana, America has become the world's major producer of this indispensable mineral. Sulphur, pumped in molten form from great underground salt domes, is over 99 per cent pure as it comes from wells.

Paint Is "Good Medicine"

If you were a native of French West Africa, the chances are that you'd treat a cold by "finger-painting" your face and the upper part of your body with white clay. This is an African equivalent of the rabbit's foot. No evil spirit dares to penetrate a mask of white clay!

Light Colors Minimize Heat

"Lively"—New Ontario Town

Baby Blue Eyes

Your baby can recognize you at the age of six months. All babies are born with blue eyes. It is normal for a baby's eyes to have little or no coordination in the early months of life, but if the condition persists after the first half-year professional aid should be sought. At birth, a baby's eye is about two-thirds of the size it will be at maturity. Like the brain, the eye reaches its maximum size long before the rest of the body. It is usually full-grown by the tenth year. The blue eyes of the newborn baby change color in many cases within the first year.

Diabetes

All human ills are more easily treated when they are discovered early. That is why everyone should have a medical examination, including a chest X-ray, at least once a year.

With regular checkups, diseases such as tuberculosis and diabetes would be more frequently detected in an early stage.

It is estimated that hundreds of thousands of people in this country have undetected diabetes. And diabetes which is allowed to progress untreated can ruin a person's health and cause serious attacks of unconsciousness, or coma, any one of which may result in death.

Diabetes results when the gland known as the pancreas fails to perform its function properly. In a well person, the pancreas provides a substance called insulin which helps the body convert the sugar content of the diet into the warmth and energy necessary for the body's existance.

With diabetes, however, the sugar goes into the bloodstream or leaves the body in urine. The abnormal loss of sugar makes the diabetic hungary and thirsty, but despite his appetite, he is usually underweight because the body cannot benefit fully from the food eaten.

Although some children have diabetes, the disease usually develops between the ages of 40 and 60. While many people lose a great deal of weight once diabetes takes hold, the disease seems to strike most frequently among the overweight.

Basic in the treatment of diabetes is a regulated diet and, where necessary, injection of insulin. The doctor will also advise the diabetic to take his exercise in moderation, because the needs of the body must be kept in balance.

Since the diabetic has less resistance against infection than a well person, he should avoid as far as possible cuts and abrasions, particularly about the feet where gangrene is likely to develop. In addition to danger of external infection, there are indications that diabetics may be more vunerable to serious chronic illnesses like tuberculosis than those who have never had diabetes.

Oratorio tto be Presented

Van Hu'se's "Christmas Oratorio" will be presented by a 50 voice choir next Sunday evening at 7:30, under the direction of Mrs. A. W. Oliphant. The large choir is composed of voices from both choirs of the local church and from First United Presbyterian Church of San Diego, where the Oratorio will be repeated a week later.

Says Mrs. Oliphant, "To my knowledge this is the first presentation of Van Hulse's "Christmas Oratorio" in this area. We chose it some months ago because of its particularly beautiful melody, and its ability to surround the Christmas story with the original atmosphere of Palestine and the Middle East."

Those with solo parts in the presentation are: Sopranos—Mrs. Mary B. Van Doren, Mrs. Hazel Fagen, Mrs. Eleanor Gordon, and Mrs. Dorothy Hines; Tenors—Mr. George Mills and Mr. Wayne Helming; Baritones—Mr. Bert Wolstencrest and Fran Gunther. Miss Charlotte Tripp will be the Organist, and Mr. Joe. O. Townsend, the Narrator.

This special musical treat is for the enjoyment of music lovers throughout the Foothills area. The public is invited. There is no admission charge, and no offering will be taken.

Other special Christmas services of the week are: Sunday Morning Worship—11 a. m. Sermon by Rev. Leon Raines: "The World Look Forward to Christmas."

Wednesday — Christmas Program by the Sunday School.

lowing the completion of additions now under construction there.

The full support of the community at recent school elections has made this desirable situation possible, because without the votes that eased the financial strain of a rapidly expanding district, the children of Lemon Grove would have continued indefinitely to attend half-day sessions.

Mr. Sutton has been a teacher in the Golden Avenue School in Lemon Grove prior to his appointment. Born in Aitkin, Minn., he came to California after serving four years as a flight engineer in the U. S. Air Force during World War II.

A graduate in the education field from San Diego State College, Sutton holds both a general elementary and elementary administrator's credential. During the past year he has served as president of the Lemon Grove District Teachers' Association, and is also a member of the National Education Association, the California Teachers Association, and the County Teachers group, where he serves on the public relations board.

Before coming to Lemon Grove, Sutton did substitute work in the city schools and acted as a part-time recreation director for the San Diego City Recreation Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutton have a home at 3851 Massachusetts Ave.

HEALTH for all

Many people who find out that they have tuberculosis are surprised to hear that the doctor's main prescription for their illness is "rest."

At first this seems like a fairly simple way of conquering a serious, chronic disease like tuberculosis. But to fight tuberculosis is quite different from what most of us ordinarily understand as "rest." The Complete bed rest" prescribed for TB patients means physical and mental relaxation in a tuberculosis hospital.

The person who has pulmonary tuberculosis has an injured or damaged lung. When someone injures an arm or leg, he "favors," or uses the damaged limb as little as possible to promote its healing as well as to avoid pain. The same holds true for a sick lung. But since the lung is constantly in motion as the organ for breathing, relaxation of the entire body is necessary to cut down the sick lung's activity.

The mind of a tuberculosis patient needs as much rest as his body. Worry and dissatisfaction can have a bad effect and can counteract the gains he would otherwise be making.

Besides rest of mind and body, some TB patients need additional rest for the sick lung. With modern surgical techniques, doctors can relax or partially collapse an injured lung either temporarily or permanently. But surgical aids are used in addition to—never instead of—the basic physical and mental rest required for a successful fight against tuberculosis.
